well, well, well...

May. 19th, 2008 at 6:50 AM

What with absent Coyotes this coming weekend, we never got around to scheduling the barbecue.

Fourth of July is on a Friday this year. Think anybody's busy that Sunday? Think the cowboy will let us use his place again?

Current Location: Wyoming, by the accent

Current Mood: hungry

Current Music: Pistol Pete poking his head in the door looking for Mom. Does he ever go home?

Are you going to bring the notaboy and the notaboy's Girl? Because I want to watch the cowboy's head spin.

Oh, please. It's Dad. Even if he was the least little bit startled, he'd pretend he knew before Wabbit did.

Hell, he might have. I can imagine him doing background checks and surveillance on everyone we've ever had coffee with.

I might even let you borrow it sometimes. That is, if I were to happen to have one.

Oh, she's not so bad. That space alien in the cape has turned her head, is all.

When I decided to be born in February, I must not have realized I'd own a motorcycle. Winter storms play hell with...

Shouldn't be amazed at how well that whole thing is going? Seems what I've been doing wrong all these years is not encouraging me to date around.

It takes so much of the pressure off.

It's almost always worked well for me. The problem with it is that the exceptions get really ugly.

I'm liking the lack of expectations thing. Also, the not having to shop around for boys, with attendant drama! Win!

Lack of expectations is good! I'm in a not entirely dissimilar relationship, except my Boy (who is much more like your Notaboy than like your Boys) doesn't have a Girl right now, he just has fun. But the relationship is based on a lack of pressure and expectations. It's nice!

So your Boy has notagirls?

See, this is the solution to everything.

Yes, exactly. So far, it's working out very well indeed.

We get together about twice a week, and whatever else we get up to is our own business unless we feel like mentioning it (which we generally do, because we think it's fun).

This setup has occasionally worked out rather badly, but I have now repudiated drama and people who generate it, and the Boy also avoids it, and this seems to be helping a lot.

I remember my grandmother lecturing my mom on the unwisdom of allowing teenagers to go steady. It's weird to think she'd probably approve of your string o' boiz. g

Cowboy actually looked bummed when I told him I was going to be out of town on Memorial Day weekend. (Actual comment: "Aw. And I was even thinking about letting you barbecue something." Smartass Cowboy. g)

So I just proposed July 4th, and he perked right up. I'd say his backyard is a go.
